Striving for Equity and Diversity in Contracting

We are more committed than ever to providing opportunities for small businesses and companies owned by women, minorities and veterans to conduct business with Department of Corrections by supporting equity and inclusive prosperity throughout the state.

Washington's Executive Order 22-01, Equity in public contracting, is founded on the belief that ensuring equitable contracting opportunities for minority-, women-, and veteran-owned businesses gives the state government access to a wider array of business solutions, helps drive innovation, strengthens economic growth and makes Washington's economy and families more resilient, strengthens our communities, and improves the quality of life for all Washingtonians.

Find Your Opportunity

Washington state has awarded 190 Master Contracts to over 1,500 businesses for agencies to order goods and services. Consider competing for those contracts when they are solicited. Go to:

Master Contracts | Department of Enterprise Services \(wa.gov\)

The Department of Corrections can buy directly from minority, women and/or veteran owned firms (certified in Washington state) up to the limit of $40,000. Submit your capability statement and contact the Department of Corrections via email:

The Department of Corrections posts competitive solicitations on Washington Electronic Business System (WEBS). You can set up automatic notifications of solicitations on WEBS when you register here:

How To Start

Washington law requires state agencies to take steps to increase participation of minority, women, and veteran owned businesses in state contracting. Get started by getting state certified in one or more programs by visiting the Office of Women and Minority Business Enterprises (for minority or women owned business) and/or Washington's Department of Veterans Affairs (for veteran owned business). Once certified, get registered at the Washington Electronic Business System (WEBS).
